

Review
for the educational and scientific program in the specialty 073 «Management», implemented at the National University «Yuri Kondratyuk Poltava Polytechnic»

The educational and scientific program for the training of doctors of philosophy in specialty 073 «Management», carried out at the National University «Yuri Kondratyuk Poltava Polytechnic», is noted for its relevance and applied expediency.

The volume, content and structure of the educational and scientific program correspond to the established requirements for educational programs of this level of education and take into account the strategic directions of reforming the national economy and are focused on the development trends of the specialty, the labor market, the interests of applicants for higher education.

The structure of the educational program itself provides for the possibility of the formation by applicants of higher education of the degree of Doctor of Philosophy of their own educational strategy through an individual choice of academic disciplines.

Forms and methods of teaching, presentation and control contribute to the achievement of the goals and programmatic learning outcomes stated in the educational and scientific program, meet the requirements of academic integrity and the principles of academic freedom.
