

REVIEW
on the educational program “International Economic Relations” in specialty 292 “International Economic Relations”
second (master’s) level of higher education

The reviewed educational program “International Economic Relations” has a clearly formulated goal that meets the needs and requests of higher education students. This program specifies the main competencies that meet the target groups' needs and the labour market's modern demands.

The educational master’s training program includes a list of disciplines, the study of which is interesting for applicants and allows for achieving the results determined by the program. The professional competencies provided by the program and the learning outcomes ensure a high level of professional training for graduates and contribute to a wide range of their professional activities.

The effectiveness of the educational process is ensured by its logical structure, a thought-out and balanced structure of the program, and an effective combination of theoretical and practical training.

Modern international economic relations are important for any state and Ukraine, particularly. The economic prosperity of the state and the well-being of its subjects depend on the effectiveness of establishing foreign economic ties. The European integration processes of Ukraine require further improvement and development of its international relations based on the study of the experience of the world's leading states.

The reviewed educational program “International Economic Relations” developed following the modern requirements of the world market, contains all the necessary structural and content components, reflects modern requirements for the training of specialists in the field of international economic relations and meets the demands of practical use and can be recommended for use in the educational process.

Reviewers

dr. Ramona Lile, Rector of Aurel Vlaicu University of Arad

dr. Grigorie Sanda, Dean of Faculty of Economic Sciences, AVU Arad

